

I feel that the abolition of the morse code requirement is a furtherance of the dumbing down of amateur radio, which follows a nationwide trend of lessening responsibility for earning privileges. It is the same dumbing down which is happening in schools which is the reason that one cannot expect proper service in a store anymore. Perhaps we can stop this trend and set an example by requiring that people earn the right to use their privileges.